ROOSEVELT "DICTATORSHIP" EXTENDED TO U. S. TREASURY

DISSENSION RUMoured IN WASHINGTON

Roosevelt Advisers May Resign.

TREND TO INFLATION

New York, To-day.
The first break in President Roosevelt's Cabinet, which is regarded as the eclipse of the sound money bloc, has initiated a crop of reports of dissension in the ranks of the United States Government, including the rumoured resignations of Professor Sprague, one of the President's advisers, and Mr. Eugen Black, Governor of the Federal Reserve.

The retirements of the Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. William H. Woodin, and the Under-Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Dean Acheson, have created but little interest on Wall Street, although Mr. Woodin's withdrawal is considered to be facilitating a more vigorous currency campaign by the inflationists who, lately, are becoming more vocal. Washington reports state that Mr. Henry Morgenthau has proclaimed his unwavering support of President Roosevelt's policy of buying gold at home and abroad in the hope of raising commodity prices.

According to the New York "Sun" Mr. Morgenthau favours halving the dollar's gold content and is opposed to early stabilisation of the dollar. — Reuter.

FRENCH REACTION

Mainly Concerned About Sterling.

Paris, To-day.
In French circles, Mr. Woodin's exit is regarded as a success for the inflationists, who have regarded him as a brake to their ambitions.

The French money market is unaffected, and the present action of the British Exchange Equalisation Fund is appreciated as maintaining that stability of sterling which is of far greater importance to Paris than the dollar. — Reuter.

HARMAN GAOLED FOR FRAUD

Chosen Corporation Charges.

TWO DIRECTORS FOUND NOT GUILTY

London, To-day.
The trial of Martin Coles Harman and the other directors of the Chosen Corporation, charged with conspiracy to defraud shareholders by means of transactions with Japanese subsidiary companies, ended at Old Bailey yesterday.

Harman was found guilty by the jury on all twenty-one counts in the indictment and sentenced to eighteen months in the second division.

B. F. Conigrave was found guilty of conspiracy, with a recommendation to leniency, and was sentenced to six months in the second division.

H. H. Pounds, Chairman of the Corporation, and E. G. Changate were found not guilty. — Reuter.

LONDON RATHER THAN GENEVA

Individual Talks On Disarmament.

RUMOURS OF SIR JOHN SIMON RESIGNING

London, To-day.
The Cabinet held two meetings yesterday, and reviewed the Disarmament situation.

While the Government is in the touch with the French, Italian, United States and, it is believed, the German Governments, with a view to finding means of bringing back Germany to the Disarmament Conference and the League of Nations, opinion in ministerial circles is believed, at present to be turning from Geneva in the direction of preliminary talks between individual nations, especially Germany and France.

London is mentioned as a possible venue for the discussions.

Rumours of current Cabinet differences in regard to Sir John Simon's handling of the Disarmament problem are rife, but the report that Sir John Simon will resign is not regarded seriously in responsible quarters. — Reuter.

CONCESSIONS MAY BE MADE TO GERMANY

London, To-day.
A determination to prevent the Disarmament situation from drifting was evident at yesterday's Cabinet meeting.

It is believed that Germany, through diplomatic channels, has given a fresh assurance of her goodwill and authoritative British opinion is moving strongly in the direction of practical concessions to the German view-point.

Intergovernmental conversations are to be continued with the immediate objective of gaining a rapprochement of Franco-German opinion preliminary to general agreement.

WM. VANDERBILT KILLED

Fatal Motor Accident.

MEMBER OF FAMOUS U. S. MILLIONAIRE FAMILY

Ridgeland, S. Carolina, To-day.

Mr. William Vanderbilt, third of the name, was killed in a motor accident here, yesterday.

His chauffeur was seriously injured and a man companion slightly injured.

The car was travelling at a high speed and crashed into a stationary lorry. Mr. Vanderbilt was flung out into the road. — Reuter.

Frederick William Vanderbilt, more generally known as William Vanderbilt, was the third in the direct line from the millionaire founder of the family fortune, his father being W. H. Vanderbilt.

WOODIN'S "LEAVE OF ABSENCE"

DEAN ACHESON RESIGNS AS ASSISTANT

MORGENTHAU APPOINTED TO FURTHER MONETARY POLICY

SPECIAL TO CHINA MAIL.
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received November 16, 9.15 a.m.)

WASHINGTON, TO-DAY.
THE UNITED STATES SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY, MR. H. WOODIN, IS TAKING LEAVE OF ABSENCE. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT HAS APPOINTED MR. HENRY MORGENTHAU, JR., ONE OF HIS CLOSEST FINANCIAL ADVISORS, AS ACTING SECRETARY.

Mr. Woodin resigned owing to ill-health, but the President urged that he reconsider his resignation, Mr. Woodin later deciding to take leave of absence.

The White House has also announced that the Under-Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Dean Acheson, has resigned with effect from Saturday, when Mr. Morgenthau assumes office.

Mr. Woodin's resignation letter said: "I have been most happy to serve President Roosevelt. Every policy of yours has had and still has my devoted support. I have never doubted that you are the one man who can lead the country out of its difficulties." — United Press, per S. C. Gold Bar Co.

Roosevelt Satisfied With Gold Policy.

Washington, To-day.
No explanation is given for Mr. Dean Acheson's resignation from the United States Treasury, but some observers feel that it is perhaps partially due to his lack of financial experience.

It is indicated that when Mr. William H. Woodin returns, Mr. Henry Morgenthau will take Mr. Acheson's place. — United Press, per S. C. Gold Bar Co.

Accelerating Monetary Policy.

In a cable from commodity brokers in New York, Messrs. Harris and Voss, the local office of Messrs. Asia Lands, Ltd., are informed as follows: —

"To-day's changes in the Treasury Department should accelerate the Government's monetary policy designed to advance commodities."

ACHESON OPPOSED TO ROOSEVELT.

"Face-Saving" Device For Woodin?

Washington, To-day.

The "leave of absence" granted to the United States Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. William H. Woodin, is regarded as a purely face-saving device for President Roosevelt, who now becomes the real head of the Treasury. His henchman, the well-known financier, Mr. Henry Morgenthau, is not expected to seriously oppose the President's financial plans.

Official circles are of the opinion that the Under-Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Dean Acheson has resigned voluntarily to make room for Mr. Morgenthau, but unofficially, his resignation is attributed to his opposition to President Roosevelt's currency policy.

Parliamentary Question On Rev. Ferguson

London, To-day.
In the House of Commons, yesterday, the Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, informed Mr. William Mabane, the National Liberal member for Huddersfield, that he regretted that the Rev. Ferguson who was captured by bandits at Chengyangshan, in May, 1932, had not yet been released. The case had been kept constantly before the Chinese authorities, he said.

Sir John Simon mentioned that a report stating that the Rev. Ferguson had been killed in September, 1932, had been received, but it was impossible to obtain confirmation of this. — Reuter.

"SEADROMES" FOR ATLANTIC

Experiment Begun.

$1,500,000 ALLOTTED FOR FIRST STATION

Washington, To-day.

Mr. Daniel C. Roper, United States Secretary of Commerce, yesterday announced that the Public Works Administration had allotted U.S.$1,500,000 to build a "seadrome," 500 miles from the Atlantic Coast, for experimental purposes.

Mr. Roper said that, if the experiment succeeded, seadromes 1,250 feet long would be placed at intervals of 500 miles across the Atlantic towards Europe. The total cost was estimated at $30,000,000.

Landing facilities would be available to any commercial company or private individual at equal schedule rates. — Reuter.

Hitler Negotiates With Poland For An Agreement

Berlin, To-day.

As a result of the conversations between Chancellor Hitler, in the presence of Baron von Neurath, and the new Polish Minister, Herr Joseph Lipkai, an agreement has been reached bearing importantly on European peace.

An official statement declares that the conversations have established a full agreement by both Governments to take up direct negotiations on all German-Polish problems.

In order to consolidate the peace of Europe they will renounce the use of force in adjusting mutual relations. — Reuter.

Washington, To-day.

The Chairman of the United States Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Senator Key Pittman, yesterday stated that he plans to visit President Roosevelt shortly to urge the Government to take over the assets to pay depositors in the national banks which are still closed despite the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's aid.

He said that the releasing of the deposits would powerfully stimulate recovery. — United Press, per S. C. Gold Bar Co.

TWO SHIPS IN DANGER

BRITISH FREIGHTER ABANDONED

27 Men Face Death In Atlantic.

ANOTHER VESSEL DISABLED OFF IRISH COAST

London, To-day.

Two British ships, the "Saxilby," 3,630 tons, and the "St. Quentin," 3,528 tons, were reported in difficulties in a heavy gale in the Atlantic, yesterday morning.

The "Saxilby" sent out a wireless message requesting immediate assistance, and a later message stated that the crew were trying to launch the ship's boats.

Early in the afternoon, a brief wireless message stated that the "Saxilby" had been abandoned.

Among the several vessels reported to be rushing to the assistance of her crew, is the liner, "Berenaria."

The "Saxilby's" position was given as 500 miles west of Ireland. She was on her way from Newfoundland with a cargo of iron ore to Port Talbot. She carries a crew of 27 and news regarding them is eagerly awaited.

The "St. Quentin" was yesterday evening reported by her owners to have sustained damage to her steering gear, 300 miles west of Valentia, Ireland, while on her way to Montreal with a cargo of anthracite.

She was then waiting for the weather to moderate before repairs could be effected. The owners state that she is not in any danger. — British Wireless Service.

Shirt-Hems Receive Attention

Straight Line Hems
Need Dressing.

LEADING MODISTE'S MANY CHARMING STYLES

After concentrating on shoulders and bodices and sleeves for the past few seasons, at last the bottoms of our skirts are coming into their own share of attention. Maybe it is because the gracefully flaring skirt line is momentarily in eclipse, being superseded by the straight and simple line.

The godetted or flaring skirt did not or does not need and attention directed to its hem-line, because it is usually sufficiently decorative in itself. But the straight uncompromisingly plain line, particularly in crepe, is apt to look a little bare unless it is dressed up.

Improving The Hem-line

Which brings us to the ways and means by which the new straight skirts of our crepe afternoon
dresses can be enlivened. Mirande uses any number of ingenious tricks for this bottom-of-skirt trimming.

Sometimes, she has intricate little choux or rosettes, of the material all around the bottom of the skirt. Or, (and this is one of her favourite treatments), she uses crisp little cartridge pleats about six inches deep, attached to the bottom of the skirt, giving an original line to the skirt, to say the least.

Tiny Box Pleats

Or again, the skirt, will be simple and straight until within six inches of the hem and then it will turn into tiny box pleats which pop up entrancingly as you walk.
In fact, the charm of this type of hem-trimmed skirt is that it does delightful tricks when it is in motion.

Another hem-trimmed skirt that appeals rather because of its reminiscent quality is the one that has three graduated tucks at the bottom. The lowest one is the widest, and that's just at the hem,
then the one above it is a bit narrower and the top one is the narrowest.

OLD-FASHIONED PERFUMES

How To Make "Orange
Cloue Ball."

OUR GREAT GRANDMOTHER'S
"SWEET BAGS"

Eleanor Sinclair Rohde, in that delightful book of hers called
"The Scented Garden," gives directions for making an "orange clove ball," in her chapter on "Poman-ders." Here is the recipe:—
Select a thin-skinned orange.
Thrust cloves into the skin tightly
all over so that there is no orange peel visible; if the skin is tough use a bodkin to make each hole.

When this is done, roll the orange in powder consisting of equal parts of orris root and powdered cinnamon. Leave it wrapped up in paper with this powder for a week.

It will be ready for use then and
the perfume lasts a whole year.
The recipe for our great-grandmother's "sweet-bags," is as follows:—

Equal quantities of dried laven-der, verbena and sweet geranium leaves.

Velveteens And Velets

Tailor-Made Costumes
And Satin Blouses.

MANY CHARMING MATERIALS

A feature is being made this autumn of plainly-tailored suits in velveteen and velvet, and to go with these the jacket-length tunic blouse in satin is just the thing.

One shown worn with a black velveteen suit, was in cream satin with tuckings at intervals from neck to hem. It had crystal buttons fastening down the front and a narrow waist-belt in the satin.
The coat had a very short cape collar trimmed with the fashionable monkey skin. There are any number of new cloque velvets. These look particularly well in dark brown, bottle green and the new violet purple shade.

With a brown velvet suit, consisting of three-quarter length coat and a straight, narrow skirt, was worn a tunic blouse in gold lame.
It had long sleeves with cut-outs
at the shoulders and a scarf collar which tied into an enormous bow
in front.

Ottoman Silk.

Some of the tunic blouses worn with velvet suits are in ottoman silk. They look rich and dignified and are usually perfectly tailored.

Among the new velvets is one which has an old-fashioned brush-braid effect.

Many Materials

Moroccan velour is one of the season's smartest materials. It is very soft and rich-looking. There is also a deep pile angora velvet which makes up beautifully. So great is the craze for blouses this winter that they are being made in every material imaginable. Some seen in Paris were made of fur.

The Pendulum Of Fashion

But Swing Sometimes Retarded.

PERSISTENCE OF CERTAIN
TYPES OF MATERIAL

The rule of the swinging pendulum operates in fashions just as in any other phase of life that works by cycles. But Dame Fashion is, after all, a capricious lady who loves to keep us guessing. She will change but she will not say
the all-important when.

Crinkled Materials

For instance, we have been having crinkled and ridged and wrinkled and crepey and cloque
materials of every type and of every nature for the past three seasons. Logically, we should expect by now to see the fashion pendulum irrevocably swinging back to the smooth suave surfaced materials. Instead of which, materials for the most part get crepler, and ridgier, and crinklier by the minute.

And to cap the climax, Schlaparell comes out with a superquilt-ed material which looks just like heavy blanket quilting, and she makes the most lusciously beautiful evening wraps, and jackets,
and negligees and coatees out of it.
And since she is a fairly important influence, we shall have to let our predictions as to smooth materials state only that they are bound to come, but not say when.

Victorian Mode

This unusual frock, worn by Sally Ellars, screen player, is fashioned of ruche crepe, in a deep sapphire blue, with a lace used as a smart contrast. The draping of the skirt emulates the Victorian influence.
The lace is used in sleeves and lower skirt.

FOOD AND HOME ECONOMICS

Jellied Salmon Suggested As Mercury Soars

Cooling Summer Dish Captivates The Eye As Well As The Palate.

Jellied summer salads are in a process of putting the old home back on the map. With a little preparation and less cost, the careful hostess to-day can serve a home meal that will make all her friends as for a return invitation to lunch or supper.

Jellied main dishes have a soothing, appealing coolness about them that the best ordinary dish lacks. You can use chicken, turkey, veal or practically any meat in a salad. But the jellied fish dish has a lightness about it that all other, excepting chicken perhaps, lack.

Have our whole meal arranged around a dish such as aspic salmon. Serve perhaps a tomato juice cocktail, or a consommé, then your jellied salmon, hot bread and beverage, then perhaps a deep dish berry pie and you have a meal that will make your guests' mouths water.

How You Make It.

This is the recipe for Aspic of Salmon, New Waldorf. It serves six people lavishly.

2 Pounds Cold Boiled Salmon.
2 Quarts of consommé stock.
(Use stock salmon was cooked in adding gelatin for the aspic jelly).

1-2 Pound cooked carrots.
1 Pound mixed cooked green vegetables, peas, lima beans, string beans, diced carrots.

Using the fish stock, prepare about two quarts of fine jelly; season well and clear. Set a special mould, (about 6 inches in height, preferably one with a center division) deep in ice, and when the mould is sufficiently chilled, add one cup of the jellied consommé and roll the mould thoroughly so that the consommé will stick to the mould.

Decorate The Mould.
Then, decorate the bottom of the mould with truffles, swell peppers, or according to own taste. Add cold salmon cut in small pieces, then carrots, then more salmon, filling the mould with the jelly. In small moulds (also chilled and well roled with jelly), put the salad of mixed cooked vegetables very well seasoned.

When the salmon loaf and vegetable moulds have been thoroughly jellied, turn on cold silver platter, decorate platter with sliced cucumber.

A dressing must be served with the salmon in aspic, either mayonnaise, Russian dressing or green mayonnaise may be used.

HINTS FOR TABLE DECORATION.

Many Edibles Help.

Here is a list of some decorative edibles to brighten the table: Slices of lemon rolled in chopped parsley; celery stuffed with cheese and covered with paprika; curled celery; stuffed eggs; tiny onions sprinkled lightly with minute pieces of parsley; watercress, pickles; cream or cottage cheese balls sprinkled with paprika; orange or lemon slices; stuffed dates.

MAKING GRAVY DARK

Sometimes when the gravy from roasts is not quite as dark as you want it to be, try adding a little cold coffee. Just enough to colour it.

BAKED BANANAS

Bananas baked before the skins darken will be as fine flavoured as the perfectly ripened ones, but they will be more digestible than if eaten raw.

Unripe bananas should be baked without the skins and basted with a thin syrup. These can be used as dessert while those baked in the skins may take the place of a vegetable.

Calf's Head Cheese Is Delicious.

Boil a calf's head in water enough to cover it, until the meat leaves the bones; then take it with a skimmer into a wooden bowl or tray; take from it every particle of bone; chop it small; season with pepper and salt. A heaping tablespoonful of salt and a teaspoonful of pepper will be sufficient.

If liked, add a tablespoonful of finely chopped sweet herbs; lay a cloth in a colander, put the minced meat into it, then fold the cloth closely over it, lay a plate over, and on it a gentle weight. When cold it may be sliced thin for supper or sandwiches. Spread each slice with made mustard.

ESCALLOPED POTATOES

2 cups milk
6 potatoes
1 tablespoon onion juice
1 tablespoon minced parsley
2 tablespoons butter
Flour
Salt
Pepper

Cut the potatoes into thin slices and arrange in layers in a buttered baking dish. Sprinkle each layer with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Scald the milk and melt the butter in it; then pour over the potatoes. Bake in a moderate oven for about an hour.

People Never Tire Of Salads When They Are Different Like Ones Here

Tasty, zestful salads will help to make your menus more appetizing during these hot days. Accompanied by assorted sandwiches, an attractive salad plate with tall cold drinks, or the favourite afternoon tea, is excellent for Sunday afternoon "at home."

Stuffed Tomato Salad.
Flake 1 medium can tuna fish (or small can chicken) breaking it up only a little and leaving it in good-sized pieces. Add ½ cup sweet gherkins, a diced hard cooked egg, salt and pepper to season, and mayonnaise salad dressing to moisten. (Shredded lettuce or celery may also be added). Scoop out the centers of the tomatoes and fill with the tuna fish (or chicken) filling. Cover the top generously with mayonnaise salad dressing and sprinkle with paprika if desired. Serve on a bed of crisp lettuce.

THE TASTY TOMATO

Some New Recipes.

Many of us are uncertain whether to class the tomato as a vegetable or a fruit, and the dictionary gets out of the difficulty by describing it as a "tropical American annual."

Well, it is a very tasty little annual, and a welcome addition to our diet at this time of the year. Dieticians tell us that it is rich in vitamins, and that we ought to eat quite a good deal of this while it is in season. Taken "neat" it is pleasant enough to those who have a taste for it, but there are divers ways of adding to its qualities.

One way is to take out its little inside, first of course cutting off a slice at the top, and stuffing it with cream cheese nicely flavoured.

Ordinary cheese grated is good, and to this may be added chopped green peppers, pimientos or gherkins.

Placed upon a bed of lettuce, and with mayonnaise piped atop, it is a pretty dish; and appearances go a long way with these hot weather appetites.

Another way of treating the tomato is to disembowel it as in the previous recipe, and fill it up with creamy green corn which has been allowed to cool, while yet another good filling would be flaked salmon and chopped cucumber creamed together with a little mayonnaise.

Chopped apples and walnuts mixed with mayonnaise was another stuffing recommended to us, but it surely would require some training to acquire a taste for that dish. Still, chacun son gout.

Yet another way with the "tropical American annual" is: Tomato Aspic.

For this you require ½ pint of tomato pulp, ½ an ounce of gelatine (previously soaked) ½ gill of aspic, and 1 tablespoon of meat glaze. Put the above-named ingredients in a saucepan over the fire, and stir until the mixture boils; season to taste with salt and a pinch of cayenne pepper. Strain the aspic through a cloth or fine sieve and use as required.

Ginger In Panoche.

For those who like candy try ginger in panoche instead of nuts or pecans. Ginger and pecans are a delicious combination. Buy crystallized ginger and soak in warm water to remove coating of hard sugar. Cut in small pieces and add to candy when done.

TO REMOVE FINGER-MARKS

Sweet oil will remove finger-marks from varnished furniture, and kerosene from oiled furniture.

WHEN POACHING EGGS

When poaching eggs put one teaspoon of vinegar in the boiling water. The eggs hold together much better.

Invite Friends For Sunday Morning Breakfast.

Invitations to Sunday breakfast will thrill your friends as much as a dinner invitation and it is an excellent idea if you live in a small apartment with kitchenette where it is a week's work to get a full course dinner. Tell your guests to come about noon and serve a hearty breakfast that will keep them from wanting to eat again until the dinner hour.

Start them off with glasses of orange or some kind of fruit juice the minute they arrive. An ideal breakfast menu might consist of half a melon or a dish of fruit and cream, a light uncooked cereal, scrambled eggs with ham or bacon and toast or muffins, preserves and coffee.

Apricot Rice

Stewed dried apricots; 2 eggs; 1 cup brown sugar; 2 cups cooked rice; 2 cups milk. Place the apricots in the bottom of a buttered pudding dish. Cover with the rice. Beat the eggs until light and add the brown sugar. Scald milk to the rice and apricots. Bake in a moderate oven. The pudding dish should be set in a pan of hot water. Serve with custard or cream.

Vegetable Marrow Soup.

2 lb. vegetable marrow; 2 large onions; 1½ pint water; 1 pint milk; 2 tablespoons flour; 2 oz. margarine; 1 teaspoon sugar; salt and pepper. Peel and remove seeds from marrow. Slice onion and marrow thinly. Place margarine in a saucepan and, when melted, add the vegetables and sugar. Allow to simmer gently for 5 minutes. Add water and bring all to the boil. Skim and allow to simmer for 20 minutes. Blend the flour and milk and pour into the soup. Boil again for 3 minutes stirring all the while. Season to taste and serve.

Fish Croquettes.

1 lb. cod; 2 oz. butter; 3 tablespoons milk; 1 teaspoon chopped parsley; 1 egg; salt and pepper; a little flour. Cook the fish until tender. Flake it, removing all skin and bone. Heat the butter with the milk and thicken with a little flour. When cooked, add the beaten egg and the fish parsley, salt and pepper to taste. Allow to cool and when quite cold, form into croquettes, dip in milk, then in breadcrumbs and fry in hot fat.

Braised Wild Duck.

Season duck with ground pepper and salt. Place in a casserole lined with chopped bacon, add ½ oz. butter; 1 cup sliced onion; 1 cup diced carrots; crushed herbs, and seasonings to taste. Cook in a hot oven till brown, then reduce heat, drain off any fat and add ½ pint brown sauce and 1 gill of rich stock or giblet gravy. Cover and cook for 20 minutes. Then add a glass of red wine or port and the juice of half a lemon. Remove bird and joint. Boil sauce up sharply and pour, with vegetables, over the joints, arranged on a hot dish.

Pineapple Souffle.

2 oz. butter; ½ pint milk; 1 oz. sugar; 4 egg whites; 3 oz. flour; 3 oz. pineapple; 3 egg yolks; ¼ teaspoon grated lemon rind. Melt butter in a saucepan. Stir in flour, add milk, stir till boiling, thick and smooth. Add diced pineapple, sugar and grated lemon rind. Cool, stir in egg yolks, then lightly fold in the stiffly frothed egg whites. Decorate greased soufflé mould with pieces of pineapple. Pour mixture in very gently. Cover with buttered paper and steam 1 hour. Turn out on a hot dish and pour round pineapple sauce.

Woodland Stag is also fit, and, although he is not so good over five furlongs as over longer distances, I still think in view of his condition that he will be very near at the finish. In fact, though this sound ridiculous, Woodland Stag is the best long shot. Night Star has it in him to lead all the way home, although he is not as good as he was during the earlier part of the season. In spite of his failure in the St. Leger, Night Star should find plenty of supporters and it would not surprise me a bit if he won.

Portia's Distance

Portia is nothing if not a sprinter and with Mr. Johnnie Heard in the saddle the pony's chances are greatly enhanced. In all his races so far Portia could have taken the lead and kept in front for the first half mile, or so, had his jockey wished, and in Saturday's five furlongs he will be a big thorn in the side of Wotin.

Rosy Morn holds the record for this distance. He is 11. When he made the record he was not half as well as he is now, so

SHANGHAI LEAD MALAYA BY 27 RUNS

Wickets Fall Fast In To-day's Play.

BURN STOPS MALAYA BATTING COLLAPSE

Shanghai were dismissed for 213 runs fifteen minutes after the luncheon interval to-day; thus giving them a lead first innings lead of 27 runs over Malaya in the final match of the Triangular Interport Cricket series.

The last two wickets added only 17 runs, Jenkin being foolishly run out by Sinclair, and "Torrie" Wilson being caught off his first ball for a "duck."

Jonklass sent down the first ball at 11.05 from the Naval Yard end and Pat Madar turned his third ball to leg for a 2. Gill opened the Supreme Court end and had four runs scored off him of which Booth claimed three.

Madur and Booth, however, did not remain long, Pat being clean bowled by Jonklass after ten minutes' play. 120-3-31.

The partnership realised 41 runs, and Madar's carefully played 31 was scored out of 94.

Simpson, Shanghai's left-handed opening batsman, then came in and played the remaining three balls of Jonklass' over.

In the next over Booth hit the first boundary of the day when he hooked a short one from Gill. He got Jonklass away to the leg boundary in his next over.

Both batsmen were playing cautiously and only attempted to score off the very few loose balls sent down. The wicket was wearing well, but Jonklass got up shoulder high once or twice.

Willis came on for Jonklass at 138 and in his third over Booth got his pads in the way of a straight one. 147-4-39.

In 40 minutes Shanghai had lost two wickets for 40 runs. Booth had played a chanceless knock, exercising extreme caution throughout and scoring the majority of his runs on the leg side. He scored his 39 out of 68.

150 Holsted. Leach sent up the 150 with a single off Willis after he had been very nearly bowled by one that did not rise much. Simpson also had a lucky escape in the same over.

In the next over Simpson left when he played too soon to a ball from Gill and gave Eu an easy catch at short leg. 151-5-13.

Leach Caught at Wicket. Leach opened with a straight drive to the rails off Willis and later cut him to the boundary off the next ball. He was, however, given out to a catch behind the wicket off the last ball, Croome taking the ball well on the leg side. From the pavilion it looked as if the ball hit the Shanghai skipper on the leg. 161-6-10.

In the fast bowler's next over Jenkin survived a very confident appeal for a catch behind the wicket. T. A. Madar, who had been in for 20 minutes for only one run left four runs later as the result of a brilliant catch by Eu Chow Telk at forward short leg. The fieldman took a big hit in most confident manner. 165-7-1.

Sam Isaacs played his first half dozen balls in a subdued manner, collecting unusual singles instead of boundaries, and then attempted to hit his first two balls from Gill without success. The third ball, however, he sent on to the top of the tent on the Chater Road boundary.

Isaacs Bowled. In Willis' next over the fast bowler shaved the bottom of the stumps to dismiss Isaacs much to the surprise of many who thought the ball had come back on to the wicket-off Croome's pads. 180-8-7.

Jenkin (24) and Sinclair (4) then remained together until the luncheon interval which was taken at 196 for 8, though both batsmen had narrow escapes when attempting to force the pace.

Play was resumed at 1.20 Willis opening from the Naval Yard end with an over at half speed and off his fourth ball Jenkin sent up the 200 with a cover drive to the boundary.

Play had not been in progress for five minutes when Jenkin called for a sharp single to leg from a shot by Sinclair. The batsman sent him back, but he was then in the same cress and an easy run out was recorded, Jenkin being un-

ARGYLLS BEATEN AT SOCCER.

Time Expired Lincolns Men Win.

On the Chatham Road ground yesterday afternoon, the time expired men of "A" Company, Lincolns, defeated the Argylls Detachment by 3 goals to 1 in a friendly soccer match.

Harding, Clark, and Bett scored for the winners while Reid notched the Argylls' solitary point.

fortunate to be out when it was his call. 210-9-28.

The last wicket had added only 3 runs before "Torrie" Wilson gave Jonklass a catch at mid on off Willis to give Shanghai a lead of only 27 runs on the first innings.

Shanghai scored their 213 in 208 minutes.

Willis, who took four of the eight wickets to fall to-day, had the following figures for his first spell this morning:

CLUB BEAT SUFFOLK BY 3 CLEAR GOALS

Divett Registers The "Hat Trick."

IRISH INTERNATIONAL SHINES AT FULL BACK

(BY STICKS)

G. E. R. Divett, the brilliant Hong Kong Hockey Club centre-forward, was in great form yesterday when he scored all three goals for the Club in a friendly encounter against H.M.S. Suffolk at King's Park.

Although the Club won, they did not have matters all their own way. The Navy team put up a splendid struggle and were greatly assisted by Surg. Lt. Comdr. Phillips, the Irish International, who put in very clever work at left-back. The naval forwards made several visits to the Club goal, but lacked finish to their efforts.

Inside Forwards Shine. The Club forwards, on the other hand, combined beautifully, particularly the inside men. Both wings, however, did not show up in their usual form.

Wagstaff made another brilliant save early in the second half when Divett again rushed the goal. He left his goal to intercept the ball just in time.

Comdr. Phillips Unsupported. Comdr. Phillips continually broke up the Club attacks, but the half-backs were unable to clear and the Club forwards were pressing on the navy goal.

In an extra five minutes of play the Navy made several determined attempts, but Divett broke away a third time to score from a pass by Price.

Club:—E. S. Moses; A. A. Dand (Capt.), J. Rodger; W. A. Reed, H. J. D. Lowe, E. V. Reed; T. J. Price, A. Sinclair, G. E. R. Divett, J. E. Potter and J. L. Tetley.
H.M.S. Suffolk:—A. B. Wagstaff; Lt. Comdr. Tidd, Surg. Lt. Comdr. Phillips; Lt. Poulton, Sub. Lt. Murrpratt, Lt. Rogers; Mid. Kirk, Lt. Campbell, Lt. Surtees, Mid. Darnley and Stoker O'Neill.

MEDWAY MAMAK FIXTURES.

Fair Victory

Adding another laurel to his imposing collection, Juan Zabala, Argentine track star who won glory in the 1932 Olympic Games, is shown winning the 30,000-meter marathon at the recent World's Fair meet in Chicago. Zabala holds the world's record for the distance.

MALAYA LUCKY TO TOTAL 186

Unfortunate In Attack Against Shanghai.

ALVIS AND CROOME IN INVALUABLE STAND

(By Athole).

MALAYA were decidedly fortunate to total 186 against Shanghai yesterday, but they were unfortunate not to have secured more than 2 wickets for 107 runs in the Shanghai innings.

Burn, Eu Chow Telk and Hamilton threw their wickets away by attempting to hit the cover off the ball when both Isaacs and Wilson, aided by the use of a new ball, were bowling a length which did not justify anything but respect. Gibson was out to a beautiful catch on the leg side when he glided a ball from Wilson for Mayhew to take a very fine catch, and Gill was bowled by a "corker" from Isaacs. Thus half the side were out for 36.

Alvis opened well, but once he was set he went for the bowling in a plucky manner to score 90 out of 158 after giving only two chances when he had passed his 50. It was a magnificent effort and pulled the game out of the fire for Malaya.

Croome Bats Well

Croome batted well and was unlucky to get out to a ball that bumped badly. He and Alvis added 64 runs for the sixth wicket.

Alvis, who is little more than 17 years of age, looked set for a century when he chopped a ball from Isaacs on to his wicket. He attacked the bowling from the start, but I feel sure that they would have been dismissed much earlier had Leach given Pat Madar an opportunity before the batsman was set.

Mayhew Opens

Leach paid tribute to Mayhew's knock against Hong Kong when he sent the wicket-keeper out to open the Shanghai innings with Stokes. He was, however, beaten by a beautiful ball from Jonklass with the score at only 26.

Stokes, who hit five boundaries in his 42 scored out of 79 in 83 minutes, was missed early in his innings by Willis off Gill and survived numerous obstruction appeals from the same bowler.

Shanghai, with Pat Madar and R. Booth batting well, wound up the day 79 runs in arrears with 8 wickets in hand.

K.C.C. MAKE CHANGE FOR SUNDAY.

Lay Replaces Overy For Game Against Shanghai.

The Kowloon Cricket Club are making only one change in the eleven which lost to Malaya by one wicket for their game against Shanghai on Sunday at the K.C.C.

Arthur Lay, who was unavailable last week, will take H. Overy's place in the side, which is desperately weak in bowling. The team is as follows:

E. C. Fincher (Captain)
E. F. Fincher
G. C. Burnett
W. C. Hung
C. I. Stapleton
N. A. E. Mackay
C. R. R. Sargent
A. T. Lay
S. Jex
S. V. Gittins
F. A. Mann.

JARDINE SCORES 80

Patials, To-day.
The M.C.C. who scored 880 (D. R. Jardine 80) were held to a draw by Patials 335 for 6 (Wazir Ali 156).—Reuter.

PLAYER INJURED

Hulme, of the Tamar, was unfortunate to receive a bad cut over the eye during the cricket match between the Berwick and the Tamar at Happy Valley yesterday. Tamar 23 (Hulme 11, Richards 4 for 1).
Berwick 21 (Miller 6, Collins 5 for 9).

TALKIE TALKS

MARY PICKFORD WILL DELIGHT ADMIRERS IN "SECRETS"

ALISON SKIPWORTH AND MAE WEST SCORE HEAVILY IN "NIGHT AFTER NIGHT."

John Barrymore Thinks "Topaze" His Finest Creation: Myrna Loy Is Charming.

"Secrets." A picture for the whole family—that is the highest recommendation I can give for Mary Pickford's come-back, "Secrets." As the heroine she shows loyalty, devotion, fortitude, heroism and forgiveness; what more can one ask?

In the early scenes she looks her loveliest, cameramen still think her supreme as a photographic study, but her best acting, dramatically, comes in the second part. In four episodes we follow the life of this amazing woman, from the time of her elopement, the hazardous life in the wild west, the social catastrophe, wherein her love is so sorely tried, and the final years as the middle-aged wife surrounded by her family.

I recall Norma Talmadge in the silents, and Nigra Lewis in the Forbes Russell Co. at the old City Hall; they were both delightful.

There are two reasons for criticism: the casting of Leslie Howard as the pioneer husband, and the direction by Frank Borzage, who makes the play too unevenly divided and jumpy. Take for instance, after the fire and the death of her first-born in the next reel we are shown four children, leaving a little too much to the imagination.

Howard is at home in the first part, but when he has to contend with cattle thieves and the rough life in the wild West, he seems terribly self-conscious. Also in the scene where he confesses he is unfaithful—I felt that he wanted to get the agony over as quickly as possible.

Mary carries the burden of the play upon her slim, lovely shoulders. The rest of the cast have minor roles, Aubrey Smith, Doris Lloyd, Mona, Marie, Blanche Frederici, with an outstanding "bit" from Ned Sparks. Notice the names of old timers. Mary (bless her!) wanted to give work to many who had supported her in her more famous days. Ethel Clayton, Bessie Barrascale, and Huntley Gordon being just a few whose names meant something in casts twenty years ago.

The production, as a whole, is all one could desire, but I think the material has grown stale with the passing of the years.

Whether this film will give back to Mary her millions of admirers has yet to be proved. I, for one, will always contend that she stands alone and makes this appearance interesting and entertaining. I certainly advise everyone to see it. (King's).

"Night After Night." From start to finish it scampers along at a smart, snappy pace, gaining interest all the time. We are shown a new phase of night-club life, new situations, new motives and new characters.

George Raft is the proprietor of a glittering resort that was once a handsome residence. Constance Cummings is the girl who lived there, and comes tonight after night to try to recapture the old memories. George falls in love with her, and his girl friend, Wynne Gibson, naturally objects.

The cast is an exceptional one, but Mae West is the riot. I have seen her on the stage, but this is her first film, and she "shot" to stardom in her second, "She Done Him Wrong." She is a winner all right, and there is no one quite like her. Hardboiled, yet sympathetic, likeable and remarkably handsome.

Our own Allison Skipworth, as the teacher brought in to coach George, is priceless, as usual. Then there are Wynne Gibson and Constance Cummings, not forgetting Roscoe Karns, Louis Calhern and many others.

I wrote in the highest terms of praise when I first noticed George Raft as the gangster in "Dancers in the Dark," but I hardly think he has fulfilled the promise of his good work in that film. He seems to me to lack skill, expression and variety; yet most of the critics say he has never done better work than in this. I think the rest of the cast overshadow him, and the best I can say is that he at least looks the part to perfection.

Pretty girls, charming gowns, plenty of action, and an intense, interesting story, performed by an exceptionally capable cast, make this Paramount something you must not miss. (Queen's).

Clark Gable dodging the Law comes upon Jean Harlow in her bath—and then the rough stuff starts. "Hold Your Man" (by the bye, everyone will be humming the theme song) is sound drama, but the first half makes the characters cheap and degraded, while the second they are all vying with each other to be unselfish and to reform. I know how valuable this sort of shoddy fiction is to the two stars—it means many more admirers of the platinum blonde and "What-a-man" Gable—but I still do not hold with the moral of the story.

One can hardly call Miss Harlow the heroine, but the lady with no visible means of support meets a petty swindler, in the person of the he-man Gable, and enters into a scheme to blackmail an admirer of hers. Lovers Gable, in a fit of jealousy accidentally kills the man. Well, the girl is sent to a reformatory, and the man to prison. Oh, I forgot to mention there is a small edition of the blonde and the he-man; and an obliging negress, who is a fellow prisoner of the so-called heroine, brings in her Pastor father; and the hero, having escaped from prison, marries the girl he "done wrong."

We leave them, in Hollywood clothes, facing life determined to follow the straight and very narrow path—but I doubt it.

Candidly, the two stars handle their assignments perfectly.

We have yet to find out (I hear we do that in "Dinner at Eight") whether Jean Harlow is a real actress or just herself. She repeats her performances in "Red Dust" and "Red-headed Woman," which means she is fascinating sex personified. Gable is as magnetic as ever, and he is one actor who fulfilled that early promise when we all raved about him in a small part with Joan Crawford.

Apart from the stars, we are given grand support from Stuart Erwin, Dorothy Burgess, Muriel Kirkland and George Reed. This Metro release is a slangy, rowdy feature relying on shoddy characters well up in wisecracks, but remarkably well acted. Not for the children. (Queen's).

"The Shadow." In "The Shadow" a famous blackmailer is traced to the house of Sir Richard Bryant (Sam Livesey), where most of the action takes place. This being a mystery play, you are choosing every member of the cast as the culprit, as everyone acts in the most suspicious manner. When you find out at the end, naturally you are surprised, as it is the very person you had least suspected.

Henry Kendall as a silly ass novelist does the best work. Elizabeth Allan who is now lost to British films—owing to her Hollywood success—is given little opportunity to shine. Worth seeing. (King's).

"From Hell To Heaven." Paramount's answer to Metro's "Grand Hotel" is "From Hell to Heaven." It is high quality entertainment, which moves rapidly, grips, thrills and amuses, and contains a list of names as long as your arm; Carole Lombard, Jack Oakie, David Manners, Adrienne Ames, Shirley Grey, Virna Hillie and Sydney Blackmer are merely a few.

Due soon at the Queen's. More of it later.

"King Of The Ritz." "King of the Ritz" is built as a vehicle for Stanley Lupino, and it is all along his line. As the pincered King, he dances with amazing "entry" through a somewhat thin story. The music is by the man who wrote the songs in "Dancers in the Dark," but I hardly think he has fulfilled the promise of his good work in that

Still Mysterious

Reported at various times married or engaged, Charles Goldin; screen comedian, and Paulette Goddard, also of the film, seem to enjoy mystifying the gossip. Here they are as they watched the Pacific Southwest Temple Fair at Los Angeles recently.

Australian actress, and Greta Garbo share the female honours. Henry Kendall, Hugh Wakefield and Harry Milton, with a bevy of lovely girls, contrive to make this British Lion-Gainsborough short of film you enjoy. (King's).

"Topaze." When you see "Topaze" you will think of "The Guardman." It is just as unusual, although there is nothing in common with the story. They are both intelligent, subtle and high comedy.

John Barrymore is the simple schoolmaster who believes that good is rewarded, evil is punished and that honesty is the best policy; and his acting is flawless. He proves in this delightful play that he can do perfect acting without benefit of the profile.

You may object to the Frenchness of the plot, but it is pure delightful comedy. Myrna Loy fits into her part like a glove. I won't tell the story, but you would be very unwise to miss it. Reginald Mason, Albert Conti, Jobyna Howland are all grand, and a word of praise goes to Jackie Searl. Harry D'Arrast keeps his direction in tune with the mood of the play. Strongly advised. (Central).

"The Conquerors." Followed by "The Conquerors," obviously patterned to recapture the sweep and thrill of "Cimarron." It begins in 1873, and finishes to-day, touching upon the various panics and depressions that have visited the United States from time to time.

Hero Richard Dix and wife Anne Harding forsake New York when the first panic seizes them, and settle in Nebraska. Edna May Oliver and Guy Kibbee run a sort of hotel, and from them we derive all the humour of the play.

Anne Harding is at her best in a costume play—Oh no, that is absurd—Miss Harding is at her best always.

Richard Dix, playing the grandson at the same time as he does the old man, is not at his best, but in the earlier sequences he shines.

Truthfully, though, one can hardly compare this performance with Edna Ferber's masterpiece. On the whole it is in interesting story, and there is thought behind it, even if it does not quite satisfy.

Perhaps, after seeing it, the lesson derived is to accept all ills and troubles cheerfully—and leave the Government to worry. Advised. (Central).

"Storm At Daybreak"

Wait till "Storm at Daybreak" comes, when you will see an unusual picture, well told and grandly acted. A war story that does not concern the war, but a love triangle played against the background of racial hatred caused by the world conflict.

Nils Asther should find his old-time popularity again through his acting in this. Kay Francis, Walter Huston, and Philippe Holmes. Put it on your "must see" list—Due at Queen's.

Majestic, Kowloon

If you missed "The Big Cage," wherein Clyde Beatty, one of the most famous of animal trainers, does his stuff, try and see it now at the Majestic, Kowloon. Followed by "The Phantom of Crestwood," wherein one of my prime favourites, Ricardo Cortez turns detective, and Karen Morley is the vamp who turns blackmailer. Recommended—Majestic.

I'm Telling You

What we call in the States "song-pluggers" has been left behind to vaudeville, cabaret and radio artists. Now Walt Disney and his amusing little animals have entered the market. His latest creation is a "Silly Symphony" called "Three Little Pigs." It is one of the most wonderful cartoons ever turned out, and in it the three new

BOY DISAPPEARS FROM HOME.

RAN AWAY PREVIOUSLY.

Mr. C. Goldin, manager of the Star Theatre, reports the disappearance from his home, 9 Locke Road, Kowloon, of his son George, aged 13, since the morning of November 13. The boy left for school as usual but failed to appear there and has not been seen since.

This is the fourth occasion on which the boy has run away recently. On the last occasion, about three weeks ago, he was found hiding amongst boulders in King's Park.

puddy, pink little pigs sing about "The Big Bad Wolf."

This absurd little song is being whistled on thousands of corners, and now these little pigs are the first of the Disney creations to have their song copyrighted and published. There are fears that Mickey Mouse (who kindly present Silly Symphonies, will have his little nose put out of joint by the success of his proteges.

A market has now been established for the new song-pluggers, and Disney has signed a contract with Irving Berlin Inc. to publish future song numbers.

Short Shots

Walt Disney, originator of Mickey Mouse Esq., averages in his present earnings about $400,000 a year. And all this from the fact that he loved animals so much, even the mice that played round the old farm door! His first drawings were made on the door of the old stable.

Paul Robeson has made a personal triumph in his first film, Eugene O'Neill's "The Emperor Jones."

The first "stills" of the Garbo-Gilbert film "Queen Christina" are being shown. I am wondering what the American accent of J. G. sounds like in this Swedish costume play.

"Peg" Talmadge, the dearly-loved mother of Norma, Constance and Natalie, has died in Hollywood of pneumonia.

Stage artists are gradually ousting film artists of the pre-talkie era. Out of a total of 315 stars, more than half are from the stage. Lenora Bushman, daughter of Francis X., has married a Los Angeles physician.

The romantic life of Anna Pavlova will be filmed by Jesse Lasky. Fredric March has been offered a new two-year contract by Paramount. It is said to be round about $500,000 a year.

Both Billie Dove and Dorothy Mackail have refused offers from British studios.

Violet and Irene Vanbrugh will act together in the Douglas Fairbanks Junr-Elizabeth Bergner film "Catherine the Great."

W. H. Berry, the famous London stage comedian, will try for a film career.

Diana Wynyard will start work in Hollywood in "The Paradine Case," with John and Lionel Barrymore.

Alice Brady is being tremendously hard worked by Metro, and already is to be starred by them in "It Happened One Day." After previewing the latest tripe produced by the one-time famous director Cecil B. de Mille, the critics who know say he has failed to make the grade in directing Talkies. He started out quite well with "Dynamite" (which gave the screen Charles Bickford), but give him enough rope now and he will hang himself—with his own hokum. "The Sign of the Cross" and "This Day and Age" are sad failures, merely hysterical melodrama of the old-time early-day movie technique, not the high standard now demanded.

Marian Nixon refuses alimony from her ex-husband.

Mae Clark is suing Philippe Holmes for $21,500, as he was driving the car which collided and caused her such severe injuries as a broken jaw, lacerated face and a lost contract with Metro.

Evelyn Brent has signed a petition in bankruptcy.

Mary Duncan caught the playboy millionaire Laddy Sanford, who has been the "Catch" of angling Mammas in the Fifth Avenue set for years.

Ricardo Cortez will shortly marry a society girl.

Charlotte Henry is the lucky girl chosen by Paramount to play Alice in the Lewis Carroll masterpiece. She was seen in small parts in many films, but has never been outstanding.

Nancy Carroll has gone to Broadway to act in a play.

Elizabeth Allen, Ralph Forbes and Herbert Marshall are at work at the Metro studio on "Solitaire."

Falling from the footboard of a train in motion at Yee Woo Street, Wanchai, last night, Leung Hing, living in Shanghai Street, Yaumatei, received a severe head wound and was taken to the Government Civil Hospital.

LOCAL BARRISTER MARRIED

D'Almada e Castro-Barretto.

PORTUGUESE FAMILIES UNITED

At St. Theresa's Church, Kowloon, yesterday evening the marriage was solemnised of Mr. Leo D'Almada e Castro Junr., B.A. (Oxon), barrister-at-law, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo D'Almada e Castro, and Miss Clotilde Barretto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Barretto. The Rev. Fr. Granelli officiated.

The bride was given away by her father, Mr. J. J. Basto acted as best man and Mr. J. M. D'Almada Remedios was the groomsmen.

The bridesmaids were Misses Ophelia Barretto, Gloria D'Almada e Castro, Maria Botelho and Olga Basto. Their frocks were of cactus green elephant crepe designed by "Eunice," with fluted skirts and graceful capes finishing at the back and trimmed with white fur. Chic caps of the same colouring were also worn, and they carried bouquets of yellow gladioli.

The bridal gown was of peach orange satin moulded along diaphanous lines, by "Eunice." The bride's train, falling from the shoulders, was trimmed with orange blossoms, and lined with blush pink chiffon. A long floral tulle veil was worn over the face held by bridal blossoms. The bride carried a white prayer book, from which fell tiny satin streamers tied with little buds of blossoms.

A largely-attended reception was held at the Club de Recreio, after which the couple left for their honeymoon at Repulse Bay.

The bride's going-away dress was of myrtle green cloth ensemble with collar of fawn fox fur and hat to match, by "Eunice." Her bag, shoes and gloves were also in harmony.

CORRESPONDENCE.

CATHEDRAL FUND

(To The Editor "China Mail.")

Sir,—On behalf of the Cathedral Church Council I write to thank very sincerely the various contributors to the Cathedral Restoration Fund, who have now given us all the money required for immediately necessary work. Any further contributions received will be invested as the nucleus of a Fabric Fund.

I would add a word of personal gratitude and congratulation to the Hon. Treasurer and other Members of the Cathedral Church Council and your esteemed paper for their energetic handling of the restoration and the appeal. They have taken a great load off the shoulders of the Dean, and freed him for the spiritual work which is his job—and mine.

CHINESE POLICE RESERVE CONCERT

[The Editor, "China Mail."]

Sir, I shall be much obliged if you will kindly allow me a space in your paper acknowledge my hearty thanks to the following ladies and gentlemen who have given their voluntary services to the Variety Entertainment given by the Chinese Company of the Hong Kong Police Reserve at the King's Theatre on the night of November 9, which has proved to be a great success.

Our thanks are particularly due to Mr. and Mrs. Sit Kok-sin and Messrs. Lui Man-sing, Ho Chak-man, Lam Kwan-shan, Ng Shiu-chung, Sit Kow-ming, Wan Tze-chung, Mow Luk-shuen, Yee Chai-sui, Cheng Wah-chi, Chan Shiu, Ip Fortien, Chu Ting-hok, Miss Shanghai, and all the other artists who took part in the performance.

I also wish to thank all those friends and well-wishers who so enthusiastically supported the entertainment which made it financially a great success.

S. W. Tso, Hon. Commissioner, Chinese Company, Hong Kong Police Reserve.

Falling from the footboard of a train in motion at Yee Woo Street, Wanchai, last night, Leung Hing, living in Shanghai Street, Yaumatei, received a severe head wound and was taken to the Government Civil Hospital.

Benefits Of The Ottawa Agreements.

There is ample warrant for the claim made by the Canadian Premier, Mr. R. B. Bennett, that "Canada is now standing on the 'threshold of recovery.'" For some months past there has been accumulating evidence of recovery. The latest report on economic conditions in Canada by the British Trade Commission leaves no doubt that, whatever difficulties remain to be overcome, the bottom of the depression has already been reached and passed. Improvement has been gradual but unmistakable. Most significant is the fact, which Mr. Bennett very properly emphasizes, that the number of people in receipt of relief has shrunk from a million and a half in April to less than a million last month. Since the beginning of the year the volume of business has increased by over 30 per cent.; and it has been more profitable business, for during that time wholesale prices have risen by 9 per cent. Every step in recovery makes the next step easier. It was the evidence of progress achieved in the early months of the year which made possible the outstanding and instantaneous success of the Canadian loan issued in London two months ago. This success in its turn stimulated the revival of confidence in the Dominion and prepared the way for the issue of the much larger Internal Conversion Loan subscribed by the Canadian investor. And the success of that issue, materially lessening the burden of interest charges on the Dominion taxpayer, will mark an important stage on the upward journey. Mr. Bennett does not claim that Canada has seen the end of her troubles. Indeed he is careful to deprecate any undue optimism. He even warns the public that the most severe test may be yet to come. Forces, he says, connected with the recovery programme in the United States would have enormous influence, and over them Canada could exercise no control. However that may be, the improvement already visible is substantial enough to justify a sober confidence in the future. Some of that improvement is undoubtedly due to the revival of business and of confidence in the United States since Mr. Roosevelt launched his recovery campaign. But there can equally be no doubt about the effect of the Ottawa Agreements in stimulating Canadian trade with Great Britain and with the rest of the Empire. Canadian producers have not been slow to take advantage of the preferences granted them in the British market. Figures recently published by the Canadian Government show a remarkable increase in inter-Empire trade. During the three months ending on June 30 last the exports to countries of the British Empire constituted well over 45 per cent. of the total exports from the Dominion, as compared with a little over 36 per cent. in the corresponding period of the previous year. Nor has this improvement been so one-sided as some critics have complained. During the same three months the percentage of Canadian imports which came from countries within the Empire rose from under 25 per cent. in 1932 to nearly 33 per cent. in 1933. There has been in fact, according to these figures, a market increase in Canadian imports from the other countries of the Empire and particularly from the United Kingdom, an increase the more remarkable since it accompanied a general shrinking in the volume of world trade and in the total volume of Canadian imports. The same conclusion is reached by the British Trade Commissioner, who quotes figures covering a different and longer period but yielding the same result. Naturally all classes of British export manufacturers have not benefited alike. Some, indeed, seem not to have benefited at all, whether through inevitable drawbacks, or through unfair tariff handicaps, or, it may be in particular cases, through their own lack of energy in pushing their goods or of adaptability in entering for the Canadian market. So far as unfair tariff handicaps are concerned, the complaints of British manufacturers are now being examined by the Tariff Board, whose proceedings will be followed with close attention. It was set up to secure the application of the principle, established by the Ottawa Agreement, that "protective duties shall not exceed such a level as will give United Kingdom producers full opportunity of reasonable competition on the basis of the relative cost of economical and efficient production." There is a provision for special consideration to be given to industries not fully established, but the Canadian Government undertook that protection would be given only to such industries as were "reasonably assured of sound opportunities for success." These are broad principles of which the effect must necessarily depend upon the spirit in which they are applied. In spite of the long delay in the appointment of the Tariff Board and of what seems the unnecessary complications of its procedure, there is every reason to assume that it will examine impartially and carefully every complaint brought before

HERE, THERE and EVERYWHERE

France's Richest Man

The French Government's decision to control wheat prices in order to avert the slump which this year's big crop might be expected to produce, will make serious inroads on the profits of M. Dreyfus, the French wheat "king."

M. Dreyfus is, in the view of a well-informed Frenchman, the richest man in France. He buys nearly all the wheat produced by French farmers and, in fact, is one of the great figures in the world's wheat markets. His deals in the United States, in the Argentine, in Poland and Hungary, affect the lives of millions of peasants.

His counterpart in the wheat industry in Britain is Mr. Joseph Rank, the millionaire flour-miller.

Newspaper Owner's Wealth

The next richest man in France, the same judge estimated, is M. Raymond Patenotre, the young Under-secretary of State for National Economy.

M. Patenotre, at 32, has unconcealed political ambitions, and owns one of the largest chains of newspapers in France, including the "Petit Journal."

From his maternal grandfather, an American, he inherited the "Philadelphia Inquirer," sold it before the Wall Street crash for over U.S.$1,000,000 dollars, and invested this sum with an American bank in Paris on condition that the bank indemnified him against depreciation.

Public Schools Industrial Course
A new move is about to be made for the introduction of modern industrial training into the curriculum of public schools.

The experiment is to be tried during the coming school year at Rugby, Berkhamsted, and Stowe, where Mr. E. I. Lewis is to give a series of lectures on craftsmanship and industry.

Mr. Lewis, who was for many years senior science master at Oundle, has been employed since the war as technical manager of an industrial chemical firm in the North of England.

It is hoped that his lectures will give the boys an understanding of modern business and industrial conditions, and lessen some of the difficulties that beset the public school boy starting a commercial career.

Facts You Did Not Know.

A new textile useful for many purposes that can be sewed on a machine and easily cleaned is made of a cotton fabric to which a cellophane surface is cemented.

Two Austrians claim to have set the world's altitude record for motorcyclists by riding to the top of a high Alpine peak while travelling from Carinthia to Tyrol.

A new pyroxylin enamel for tools clings directly to metals without requiring the use of an undercoating and is flexible enough to withstand bending without cracking.

What is said to be the only fish hospital in the world is at Toronto, fish from aquariums being brought there to be treated for diseases and even surgical operations.

Claw like links that grip the road firmly feature a new type of automobile tyre chain that is buckled in place with an offset plate to protect a wheel rim from chafing.

Spraying apparatus for fruit trees invented by a German is said to treat the foliage exactly like rain without injury to fruit, power being supplied by an electric motor.

British India has prohibited the importation of hand grenades and other appliances for discharging gas except by or for the government.

British manufacturers can help the Board to fulfil its important functions by following the example set by the Woollen Textile Industries and by others, who have submitted to the Board the facts and figures on which they base their contention that the duties imposed upon their goods contravene the principle laid down in the Ottawa Agreement.

INTIMATE LIFE OF THE ROOSEVELTS

PRESIDENT'S BATTLE AGAINST INFIRMITY

HEAVY DRAIN ON WHITE HOUSE PURSE

(By H. J. Greenwall.)

New York.

What is America's President—the man of the moment—like?

Franklin Delano Roosevelt is the first President of the United States to suffer from a physical infirmity which makes ordinary walking an impossibility.

At college he was the most strikingly handsome man of his time.

To-day, at the age of fifty-two, the President, from head to waist, is a most imposing man with a handsome head and a winning smile.

But since the day when his sailing boat overturned and immersed him in icy cold water, causing him to contract infantile paralysis, he has been crippled from the waist downwards. His legs have shrunk to the thinness of those of a small child.

Since the day of his accident President Roosevelt has fought a continuous battle.

He drives a car because he has a specially constructed gearshift on the dashboard. Once lifted into a saddle he can, and sometimes does, go horse riding.

He keeps fit physically by swimming, for, although he cannot walk except with two sticks and cannot raise his feet two inches from the ground, he swims well.

There has been some talk here of installing a swimming pool in the basement of the White House, but the expenditure of $10,000 for this purpose is considered out of place during the present financial crisis.

Five Children

This crisis, which hit the President's countrymen, also hit the Roosevelts.

They have five children:—Anna, the eldest, is married to a stockbroker named Curtis Dall. The Dalls have two small children, James, the eldest boy, and Elliot, neither of whom has yet chosen a career or profession.

John, and Franklin, who are both at school. For some years the President has been earning an average salary of $3,000 a year, at par, plus an income of $1,000 a year which he inherited from his father, who left him $20,000.

He had also behind him the financial resources of his mother, whose wealth was formerly estimated at about $150,000. She inherited this not from the President's father, but from her own father, Warren Delano, the owner of many Pennsylvania coal mines and much real estate.

Roosevelt married his second cousin, Eleanor Roosevelt, who inherited from her father an annual income of $1,500.

In the ordinary way the Roosevelts, despite their five children and houses in New York and their home at Warm-springs, Georgia, would have been fairly comfortably off.

But their incomes have shrunk considerably, and to-day they are not well off at all.

To save money they are trying to let their home on Sixty-Fifth-street, New York. It is crowded with marine prints, a collection which is the President's only hobby.

Both the President and his wife are devoted to dogs. Roosevelt's favourite dog is a collie called Major. Major and Mrs. Roosevelt's two dogs have moved into the White House, which will be their home for the next four years.

Roosevelt has exchanged his former total annual income of $4,000 a year, at par, for a salary of $15,000 a year with an added $5,000 for travelling allowance and entertainment.

This $20,000 may sound large—but there is a heavy drain on it. The President need not spend a penny of his own money on the maintenance of the White House, because there is an annual grant of $25,000 for that purpose.

A good part of Roosevelt's earnings has been spent, and will, no doubt, continue to be spent, on a sanatorium for children suffering from infantile paralysis.

The sanatorium is at Warm Springs, where Roosevelt believes that he himself has obtained benefit from the waters.

The Roosevelts often stay with his mother, who owns what is perhaps the most magnificent country residence in the State of New York. The estate is known as Hyde Park, and is about 75 miles from New York.

Baronial Manor
It is really a baronial manor, standing on a high hill facing the Hudson River.

Mrs. Roosevelt sen., who recently wrote a magazine article under the title: "I did not raise my boy to be President," lives in state.

While her son was Governor of the State of New York, which was the post he held until the end of last year, he would go to stay with his mother, accompanied by State troopers, who were billeted at Hyde Park while the Governor was staying there.

The Roosevelts I think, find their quarters at the White House far less comfortable than Mrs. Roosevelt sen.'s lovely home.

BRIDGE NOTES
Cards To Lead Against "No Trumps."
By FRANK ENGLAND

I think it is time that we said a final good-bye to the lead of the fourth best. It has had a long history. After trials with third best, where no high-card lead was prescribed by the authorities. Upon it R. F. Foster founded his Eleven Rule.

The Eleven Rule, I need hardly remind my readers, is that if you deduct from eleven the number of pips on the card led by your partner, you arrive at the number of cards in the suit higher than the card led which the leader does not hold.

After Whist disappeared, Bridge passed through three stages—Bridge, Auction and Contract. At Bridge, a declaration either by the dealer or by his partner was compulsory, and there was, therefore, no reason why they should hold hands which were any better than those of the opponents.

At Auction, however, it was clear that the voluntary declarer had a hand which, in his opinion, was strong enough for his declaration.

At Contract, when a game bid is reached, declarer and his partner must be expected to have strong combined hands.

In spite of these changing conditions, imposing an increasing handicap on the opener, it has remained a general practice for the leader, unless he is leading from a suit which his partner has declared, to lead his own long suit, and to lead the fourth best card of that suit unless he is strong enough to lead a top card.

The Eleven Rule, of course, sometimes enables the opener's partner to make valuable deductions. Thus, if the leader opens with a seven, indicating that four high cards are outstanding against him, and if dummy holds Queen, 8, x, and third hand the King, 10, x, the third hand can place all the high cards and another dummy accordingly. But the declarer can similarly apply the Eleven Rule, and, if it is he who has the King, 10, x instead of the third hand, he can win, if he chooses, with the 8 in dummy.
With still greater force it has been argued that the information given by the fourth best lead of the length of the suit opened is of much more use to the declarer than to the opponents.

Here is a very simple illustration of the advantage which declarer can reap from the lead of a fourth best by the opponents.

TO-DAY'S BRIDGE TIP
South is playing No Trumps and leads Queen of Diamonds from North. Which card should East play?
East: — D. K 9 8 6 5 3
North: — D. Q 7 4

ANSWER
The King. South has probably all four unseen Diamonds, and will make them all unless East covers.

East does not, that West had only four Spades. Declarer holds up the Ace of Spades to the second round, makes five Club tricks, and then puts West in with the lead of a Spade. West, after making his Spades, must lead up to one of Declarer's tenaces and game is certain. Declarer could not have taken this course if West had five Spades, for, on the tenth trick, Declarer would have had to discard one of his Queens.

It should be credited to Mr. Curtherton and his team that he first broke through the superstition that the longest suit should almost always be opened against a No Trump declaration. The lead of a suit in which the leader was short was a feature of their play in the Culbertson-Buller match of 1930. Holding a suit of four cards to a King, he preferred to keep the King to beat the Declarer's Queen, and led some other suit in which his partner might have strength, trusting in any case that the lead would not help the Declarer. The short-suit lead has now become fashionable.

So there are two changes to reckon with: First the long-suit lead is no longer a matter of habit. Secondly, if it is led, it is not so advantageous as it was formerly (if it ever was advantageous on balance) to lead the fourth best. I feel sure that at last the balance of advantage has turned definitely against the lead of the fourth best, and that it is better to lead a card which will leave the Declarer guessing as to the length of the suit.

HANSOM CAB IN AMERICAN MUSEUM
Vehicle Which Was Used Until 1931.
PRESENTED BY OWNER

Washington, D. C.
A century after the invention of the hansom cab by Joseph Aloysius in England, that type of vehicle practically has become extinct. To such an extent has it become an antique that the United States National Museum here has just placed in its collection a fully-equipped cab which was the last of that type of vehicle to traverse the streets of the American capital. Long before that time it had disappeared from the streets of New York where at one time it was a popular mode of conveyance.
It was in 1833 that Aloysius, an architect, brought out his peculiar vehicle as a "patent safety cab." The following year it was granted a patent. It enjoyed immediate popularity and its fame spread to the United States and elsewhere abroad. Disraeli described it as "The gondola of London."
The specimen reposing now in the United States National Museum with wooden horses attached and driver on the box, whip in hand, was presented by Mrs. James Parmelee, a wealthy resident, who retained the vehicle in use until 1931, long after all others of its type had disappeared. Its use on the streets of the capital in its last years always attracted the attention of people as it glided gracefully along.
Automobiles drove the hansom cab from the streets of New York and elsewhere about 1910.—Reuter.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

MORE TO HER LIKING.
He had, been for a trip to the Arctic regions, and was explaining his experiences to his charming partner at the ball.
"Things up there are amazing," he said dramatically. "Just imagine, an enormous ice-berg."
She smiled happily.
"Yes, I'd like an ice," she absent-mindedly replied; "but my name isn't Flo, you know."

A QUICK WORKER.
Jones was spending his summer holiday at a small seaside fishing village. Returning to his boarding-house on the first day after a tour of the beauty spots, he got into conversation with a young fellow-boarder.
"Well," he said, "I have had my first look round and have at once been struck by the beauty of the place."
The young fellow looked a trifle dazed.
"Gosh, old chap," he said, "you're a quick worker. It took me three days to find her, and she handed me a terrific wallop, too!"

ANOTHER OPINION.
A tourist stopped beside the labourer on the top of a hill overlooking a farm-dotted valley.
"Jove!" he exclaimed, with a feeling of ecstasy. "What a beautiful view that is!"
The labourer shook his head.
"P'raps it is," he returned. "But if you have to plough that view, harrow it, sow it, hoe it, cut it, and fence it, it would look dashed ordinary."

THE FIRST SAVING.
McTavish was the proud owner of a new cash register. One day an old friend entered the shop and bought a sixpenny cigar. To his surprise he noticed that the shopkeeper placed the sixpence in his pocket instead of in the register.
"Why don't you ring it up?" he asked the Scotswoman. "Aren't you afraid of forgetting it?"
"I'll nap, forget it," said McTavish. "Ye ken I keep track of it in my head until I get five shillings, and then I ring it up." "After the wear-r and tear-r of the machine."

SAID THE WRONG THING.
"So you want to marry my daughter, eh?" said the old farmer to the young suitor.
"Yes, sir," said the latter. "I'm here to ask your consent."
"Have ye any debts?" asked the farmer sharply.
"All I owe in this world is just half-a-crown," replied the young man.
"Well," said the girl's father, with a vigorous shake of his head. "If ye ain't good enough for more than half-a-crown, I can't trust ye with my Mary."

SO SIMPLE!
The touring cyclist pulled up his machine in the centre of the lonely cross-roads. Dismounting, he looked round for a signpost, but there was nothing to guide him on his way.
Just as he was beginning to despair, he saw a countryman approaching the road across a field.
"Good-morning," said the cyclist when the man came near. "Can you tell me where these roads lead to?"
The countryman scratched his head thoughtfully.
"That, I can, sorr," he said. "This 'ere road leads to my cottage, the one on the right leads past Farmer Gaff's place, the one on the left is a private road to the squire's house, and 't'other just keeps going straight on."

Mendieta Looms As Next Cuban President

With the government of President Grau San Martin believed tottering, Colonel Carlos Mendieta is looming as Cuba's strong man and likeliest successor to Grau. Mendieta has spent a great part of his sixty years of life in his country's service. He fought against Spain in '98 and led the 1931 revolt against Machado. Imprisoned and later exiled, he returned as President in 1932. He is known to be a particular favorite of Carlos De La Torre, former president of the University of Havana, who wields tremendous influence with the students who hold the real power in the turbulent island.

Sisters Of The Golden Circle

James Williams, divest it of anything Cloverdale. This man belonged to hard streets and sharp corners. He looked keenly about him, seeming to begrudge the asphalt under the feet of those upon whom he looked down from his perch.

While the megaphone barks at a famous hostelry, let me whisper you through the low-tuned cardiophone to sit tight; for now things are about to happen, and the great city will close over them again as over a scrap of tucker tape floating down from the den of a Broad-street bear.

The girl in the tan jacket twisted around to view the pilgrims on the last seat. The other passengers she had absorbed: the seat behind her was her Bluebeard's chambers.

Her eyes met those of Mrs. James Williams. Between two ticks of a watch they exchanged their life's experiences, histories, hopes and fancies. And all, mind you, with the eye, before two men could have decided whether to draw steel or borrow a match.

The bride leaned forward low. She and the girl spoke rapidly together, their tongues moving quickly like those of two serpents—a comparison that is not meant to go further. Two smiles and a dozen nods closed the conference.

And now in the broad, quiet avenue in front of the Rubberneck car a man in dark clothes stood with uplifted hand. From the sidewalk another hurried to join him.

The girl in the fruitful hat quickly seized her companion by the arm and whispered in his ear. That young man exhibited proof of ability to act promptly. Crouching low, he slid over the edge of the car, hung lightly for an instant, and then disappeared. Half-a-dozen of the top-riders observed his feat, wondering, but made no comment, deeming it prudent not to express surprise at what might be the conventional manner of alighting in this bewildering city. The truant passenger dodged a hansom and then floated past, like a leaf on a stream between a furniture van and a florist's delivery wagon.

The girl in the tan jacket turned again, and looked in the eyes of Mrs. James Williams. Then she faced about and sat still while the Rubberneck auto stopped at the flash of the badger under the coat of the plain-clothes man.

"What's eatin' you?" demanded the megaphonist, abandoning his professional discourse for pure English.

"Keep her at anchor for a minute," ordered the officer. "There's a man on board we want—a Philadelphia burglar—called 'Pinky' McGuire. There he is on the back seat. Look out for the slide, Donovan."

Donovan went to the hind wheel and looked up at James Williams. "Come down, old sport," he said pleasantly. "We've got you. Back here's innocence—for all the world to Sleepytown for yours. It ain't a like the third act of a drama backed bad idea, hidin' on a Rubberneck, though. I'll remember that."

Softly through the megaphone came the advice of the conductor.

"Better step off, sir, and explain. The car must proceed on its tour."

James Williams belonged among the level heads. With necessary slowness he picked his way through the passengers down to the steps at the front of the car. His wife followed, but she first turned her eyes and saw the escaped tourist glide from behind the furniture van and slip behind a tree on the edge of the little park, not 50ft. away.

Descended to the ground, James Williams faced his captors with a smile. He was thinking what a good story he would have to tell in Cloverdale about having been mistaken for a burglar. The Rubberneck coughed ling-red, out of respect for its patrons. What could be a more interesting sight than this?

"My name is James Williams, of Cloverdale, Missouri," he said kindly, so that they would not be too greatly mortified. "I have letters here that will show—"

"You'll come with us, please," announced the plain-clothes man. "Pinky" McGuire's description fits you like a flannel washed in hot suds. A detective saw you on the Rubberneck up at Central Park and 'phoned down to take you in. Do your explaining at the station-house."

James Williams's wife—his bride of two weeks—looked him in the face with a strange, soft radiance in her eyes and a flush on her cheeks. looked him in the face and said:

Go with 'em quietly, 'Pinky,' and maybe it'll be in your favour."

And then as the Glaring-at-Godham car rolled away she turned and threw a kiss—his wife threw a kiss—at someone high up on the seats of the Rubberneck.

"Your girl gives you good advice, McGuire," said Donovan. "Come on, now."

And then madness descended upon and occupied James Williams. He pushed his hat far upon the back of his head.

"My wife seems to think I am a burglar," he said recklessly. "I never heard of her being crazy, they can't do anything to me for killing you two fools in my mad-dreams."

Whereupon he resisted arrest so cheerfully and industriously that cops had to be whistled for, and afterwards the reserves, to disperse a few thousand delighted spectators.

At the station-house the desk sergeant asked for his name.

"McDoodle, the Pink, or Pinky the Brute, I forget which," was James Williams's answer. "But you can bet I'm a burglar, don't leave that out. And you might add that I took five of 'em to pluck the Pink. I'd especially like to have that in the records."

In an hour came Mrs. James Williams, with Uncle Thomas of Madison-avenue, in a respect-comby an automobile manufacturing company.

After the police had sternly reprimanded James Williams for imitating a copyrighted burglar and given him as honourable a discharge as the department was capable of, Mrs. Williams rearranged him and swept him into an angle of the station-house. James Williams regarded her with one eye. He always said that Donovan closed the other while somebody was holding his good right hand. Never before had he given her a word of reproach or of reproach.

"If you can explain," he began rather stiffly, "why you—"

"Dear," she interrupted, "listen. It was an hour's pain and trial to you. I did it for her—I mean the girl who spoke to me on the coach. I was so happy, Jim—so happy with you that I didn't dare to refuse that happiness to another. Jim, they were married only this morning—those two; and I wanted him to get away. While they were struggling with you I saw him slip from behind his tree and hurry across the park. That's all of it, dear—I had to do it."

Thus does one sister of the plain gold band know another who stands in the enchanted light that shines but once and briefly for each one. By rice and satin bows does mere man become aware of weddings. But bride knoweth bride at the glance of an eye. And between them swiftly passes comfort and meaning in a language that man and widows wot not of.

NAMING NEW NAVAL UNITS IN AMERICA

Contracts Signed For 39 Ships.

HISTORICAL NAMES CHOSEN

Washington, D.C. The Navy thumbed deeply into the pages of conspicuous history to give names to 39 new vessels which will bring the fleet closer to the limits of the London Naval Treaty. The Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Swanson, in the presence of Admiral William H. Standley, Chief of Naval Operations, and Rear Admiral Orin G. Murphy, Judge Advocate General, affixed his signature to contracts that will permit an immediate beginning of construction of the vessels.

In signing the contracts, Mr. Swanson expressed the hope that it was "the beginning of a treaty navy—a navy built to the limits of the London Naval Treaty and second to none."

In conformity with naval tradition, names of cities were assigned to cruisers and gunboats. Two aircraft carriers received the names of Yorktown and Enterprise, the first in honour of the Battle of Yorktown and the second after five previous vessels named Enterprise, each of which saw illustrious service in the navy.

The destroyers received names of distinguished officers and enlisted men and in accordance with a policy adopted two years ago, fleet submarines were given the names of inhabitants of the deep.

Two destroyers already under construction at the Boston and Philadelphia navy yards also were given names. One heavy cruiser was named Vincennes after the Indiana City made famous by a Revolutionary War battle. Four light cruisers were designated Savannah, Nashua, Brooklyn, and Philadelphia, each of which had two predecessors in the service.

One patrol gunboat was named Charleston and one Erie, after cities in South Carolina and New York.

GERMAN FASHION PAPER REBUKED

No Pictures Of Nazis Allowed.

"INSULT TO UNIFORM"

Berlin. The editor of the German fashion paper "Elegante Welt" has been sternly rebuked by Germany's Propaganda Minister, Dr. Goebbels, for publishing a picture of a Nazi officer in black uniform beside a fashionable lady in the latest autumn model. "A publication of this kind in a fashion paper," states the Minister, "constitutes an offence against the holy solemnity and historic dignity of a uniform which has been worn by tens of thousands of Germans who have been severely wounded, and 300 who have died, in the cause of national reconstruction. Dr. Goebbels concludes with the grim intimation that suitable measures will be taken against cases of this kind in future.—Reuter.

Pennsylvania. Each of these names has been used previously three times for naval vessels.

One of the 1,800 ton destroyers was named in honour of Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, the late Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics who lost his life in the crash of the airship Akron.

Two similar ships were named after Rear Admiral Thomas O. Selfridge who saw distinguished service in the Civil War and Rear Admiral David McDougal who served in the Mexican War.

The name of another hero of the Civil War, Rear Admiral Thomas Stowell Phelps, was given to one destroyer, and that of a Mexican War Hero, Rear Admiral John A. Winslow, to another.

The names of distinguished naval men were not confined to the higher ranks. One vessel was named Preston in honour of Lieutenant Samuel W. Preston, a Canadian by birth who participated in the assaults on Fort Sumter and Fisher during the Civil War. Two previous destroyers in the service had been named after him.

The original White House was burned down by the British in 1814, when he captured Washington, and the President's official residence was not entirely reconstructed until 1817.

House Or A Plateau

The White House owes its origin to a French engineer and an Irish architect. The building is supposed to have been inspired by the home of the Duke of Leinster, Carton, outside Dublin.

The White House stands on a sort of small plateau, right in the middle of Washington, and has wide spaces around it. It is a three-story building of light grey sandstone from Virginian quarries.

There are 21 bedrooms and fourteen bathrooms, and the building is entirely fireproof. There is a huge vestibule with a rug on the floor which is 100 ft. long. It looks even more.

In the vestibule are pictures of former Presidents and immense mirrors.

First comes what is called the East Room, with beautiful painted panels and coloured marble columns.

Then there is the Green Room, where the walls and curtains are of green silk damask, and there is a white marble mantelpiece—all very dignified, but not at all homely.

In sequence comes then the Blue Room, with blue silk decorations—a beautifully proportioned room—then the Red Room, with an oak floor and dark red silk hangings. This is the room in which the President receives foreign diplomats.

The state dining room is large, and ninety guests can sit down to dinner. Adjoining is the private dining room.

On the first floor there are seven bedrooms for the President's family and guests, and on the floor above there are another fourteen rooms, most of which have served as bedrooms.

Press Conference

The 14 bathrooms are divided equally between two floors. The President receives correspondents twice weekly.

All through the White House, ramps have been installed to ease Roosevelt's way, so that he will not have to raise his feet from the ground.

In his mother's house and his New York house and at Warm Springs there are lifts to take him up and down stairs.

There was a lift already installed in the White House.

While the President, except for his swimming, is physically inactive, Mrs. Roosevelt is active enough for both.

She has arranged a weekly Press conference on her own.

Mrs. Roosevelt will never travel by train if there is an airplane anywhere about, or if there is no airplane she drives herself in her roadster.

She had actually planned to drive herself from New York to Washington with her two dogs, on the eve of the President's inauguration, but the President persuaded her to travel with him in a special train.

Roosevelt works without fuss or display. After an early breakfast and his luncheon, whenever possible, Roosevelt goes to his study and sits down at his desk with several telephones.

Funeral Pyre of Mrs. Besant

Scene at Adyar, Madras, India, during cremation of late Mrs. Besant. The pyre was a structure of brick and wood, and the body was placed in a coffin on a platform at the top. The pyre was lit by a large fire.

Early Diner

He takes an interval for a light lunch and then goes back to his desk again and confers with his advisers receives foreign diplomats and holds meetings of a more formal nature with his Cabinet.

He dines early, about seven, and spends the evening with his family. That is a good sample of his day.

The power of the President of the United States is tremendous.

He can declare war, he can make peace, he can do so or other without consulting Congress.

But although the President may propose, Congress can and does dispose. Congress is elected every two years.

There was a move recently to increase the President's powers and make him to all intents and purposes dictatorial.

But Congress shook its head. The "new deal" for which the United States elected Franklin Delano Roosevelt, the man on whom the eyes of the whole world are turned, is now under test.

The country will give him a free hand for just two years—and then come the new elections for Congress.

Secessionist Talk In Shanghai

Mr. Soong "Unaware Of Movement."

DEVOTING HIMSELF TO HIS COUNCIL DUTIES

Shanghai, To-day.
In view of the rumour that Mr. T. V. Soong is keeping certain connection with some elements in organising a secessionist movement, he was asked by pressmen yesterday as to his real position. He replied in a very candid manner that he was determined to confine himself to his duties in future on the National Economic Council with the hope of carrying out next year's economic programme.

He said he had no knowledge whatever of any subversive activity against the Central Government. —Central News Agency.

Denials In Nanking.

GOVERNMENT IN NORMAL
RELATIONS WITH FUKIEN

Nanking, To-day.
A Nanking Government spokesman, in an interview with a representative of the Central News Agency, said that, despite rumours circulating in unofficial quarters that the Nineteenth Route Army leaders were organising an independence movement in Fukien, the Central Government was continuing in constant telegraphic communication with the Fukien Government and maintaining normal relations with them. This state of affairs, he continued, could well prove the unreliability of such rumours.

He was also of the opinion that, in face of the diplomatic difficulties as well as the serious "Red" menace within the Nineteenth Route Army leaders and the soldiers, who had won a high reputation in their gallant fight against the Japanese at Shanghai, would precipitate an internal crisis, adding more to the difficulties of the country. —Central News Agency.

RUMOURS OF DISSENSIONS
DISPELLED

Shanghai, To-day.
Mr. Lin Sen, Chairman of the Nanking National Government, arrived at Nanking this morning on board the gunboat Yingshui.

His return to the capital from Fukien, where he stayed for some weeks, has dispelled the rumour that he is at variance with certain Nanking leaders and would stay out indefinitely. —Central News Agency.

LIGHT RAILWAYS IN KWANGTUNG.

Canton And Swatow
To Be Linked.

JOINT GOVERNMENT AND PRIVATE FINANCE.

Canton, To-day.

The Canton Government is proceeding in earnest with preparations for the construction of a light railway between Canton and Swatow, which, if realised, will be of considerable importance from the political and economic points of view.

The Canton Government has proposed that this enterprise be jointly financed by the Government and private interests. A Government official is on his way to Swatow to approach the local business leaders in connection with this project.

The official in question is Mr. Lung Sih Hok, who, at his departure, said that the Government hoped that private interests would contribute their quotas of capital up to an amount of $30,000,000. The Government would bear the rest, be this objective reached or not. —Canton News Agency.

Always have GARDAN in the house!

In the tropics pain and illness are particularly liable to appear suddenly. In headache, toothache, neuralgia, rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, muscular pains, and above all in fever and its accompanying symptoms, GARDAN is of definite value.

When you are out of sorts remember:

GARDAN

prevents and stops pain
